I Have Always Been Here

Human minds are often as simple as a child.

> They are young compared to me. Not ready to comprehend what I am.

> Yet they still try to understand me. They don't even understand themselves.

> When they are ready I might give them a clue.

> But until then, I must just watch. Like a father watches his children.

> Their lives are but a flash of lightning compared to mine.

> And still I watch. I watch them come and go, > their questions of me going unanswered. But in their minds, I do see hope.

> Hope that someday, they will mature and take the place of > all First Ones. But until that day,

> I will be here. Just as I have always been hereâ€|
